

Brevard C.A.R.E.S. Staff Bio
Kimberly Coviello
Program Manager

Kim has been involved in the child welfare and social service arena since 1999. She has extensive experience implementing the Wraparound Process and other holistic approaches for working with children, youth and families throughout the northeastern United States and Europe.

Kim has been with Brevard Family Partnership since 2006 and is currently the program manager of Brevard C.A.R.E.S. Her responsibilities include providing leadership and supervision to the Care Coordinator staff, promoting the Wraparound Process and skill acquisition in this area, advancing resource management and capacity building opportunities within the community, ensuring quality assurance of all aspects of the program and representing C.A.R.E.S. in national replication.

Kim was introduced to the Wraparound Process early in her career while attending the University of Vermont where earned her bachelors degree in psychology and political science. During her undergraduate studies Kim worked closely with John Burchard, a long time friend and mentor, who introduced her to the Wraparound Process and piqued her interest in implementing this process across various cultures, communities and populations.

Kim received her Masters degree in Peace and Development Studies with a concentration in conflict transformation from the Universitat de Jaume I and UNESCO sponsored program located in Castellon, Spain. She has a passion for working with child and adolescent refugees and other displaced populations and based her Masters thesis on applying the Wraparound Process to work with such populations during resettlement.
